

2021 NaNo Bootcamp

18

500 words

PREP:

- » How? Decide whether to outline your plot or freeform [plotter or pantser]. Assemble materials.

PROMPT:

- » Plastic is outlawed. Pick a disposable item of today and create an alternative. Show the consequences for not using it.

POPPYCOCK:

- » Write a scene in the purplest prose you can manage.

(fill in your actual wordcount here or put a sticker!)

19

550 words

PREP:

- » Who? List your main character and potential side characters. Give them all one admirable trait and one really annoying one.

PROMPT:

- » Chose of a location from your childhood that's gone now, and place an unexpected item in it. Revisit as an adult.

POPPYCOCK:

- » Write a scathing email about your main character to another main character [or the antagonist].

(fill in your actual wordcount here or put a sticker!)

20

667 words

PREP:

- » What? Describe the scenario that the characters find themselves in, and what they need.

PROMPT:

- » High School is Where Books Go to Die: characters from random HS English choices find themselves trapped in a battle royale.

POPPYCOCK:

- » Pick a genre that you DON'T read, and introduce the main character in the most That Genre-iest way possible.

(fill in your actual wordcount here or put a sticker!)

21

767 words

PREP:

- » Where/When? Describe the world or the specific setting, including all five senses.

PROMPT:

- » Find a random family portrait and describe each character in turn. One of them is false.

POPPYCOCK:

- » Imagine your main character as a moody 18th century sea captain writing a ship's log.

(fill in your actual wordcount here or put a sticker!)

22

867 words

PREP:

- » Why? What decision must the main character make?

PROMPT:

- » You pick up a hitchhiker. They seem to know you, but you've never met them before. Figure out why and who they are before you arrive at your destination.

POPPYCOCK:

- » Cliché you hate? Write an entire scene around it.

(fill in your actual wordcount here or put a sticker!)

23

967 words

PREP:

- » How? How does the main character think they're going to accomplish their goal / what are the consequences of their decision?

PROMPT:

- » One of the dishes at this potluck is contains a tiny amount of poison. Who brought it, and why?

POPPYCOCK:

- » Put all of your characters in line [together!] at the airport. The plane is leaving very soon.

(fill in your actual wordcount here or put a sticker!)

24

FREE DAY

Catch up or relax!

balanced reviewing

Join us on Discord to chat, congratulate, and commiserate!

2021 NaNo Bootcamp

vf victoriafeistner.com

25

1067 words

PREP:

- » Why? What makes your antagonist move forward? What is the scenario from their point of view?

PROMPT:

- » Take a fairy tale or children's story and set it in a corporate workplace with reversed genders.

POPPYCOCK:

- » Rewrite a scene you adore in a different perspective (either character or literally 1st vs 2nd vs 3rd).

(fill in your actual wordcount here or put a sticker!)

26

1167 words

PREP:

- » Reevaluate your plot based on what you now know about your antagonist. Should the consequences of the main decision change?

PROMPT:

- » Your grandmother is chosen as a colonist on a new planet and you have to help her move.

POPPYCOCK:

- » Have one of your characters call into a radio talk show to discuss either a current event or a shameful secret.

(fill in your actual wordcount here or put a sticker!)

27

1267 words

PREP:

- » Brainstorm some random events that you can toss into the plot when you start to falter.

PROMPT:

- » Two bards must face off and sing about [a random page on Wikipedia]. Who is watching? What is the reward for winning?

POPPYCOCK:

- » One character is writing limericks about another character.

(fill in your actual wordcount here or put a sticker!)

28

1367 words

PREP:

- » Moods! Assemble a mood board or a playlist.

PROMPT:

- » Take the plot from a heist movie, and set it in a vastly different genre.

POPPYCOCK:

- » Pick a minor character, and send them to the supermarket to pick up items for the main character. None of the items on the list are available.

(fill in your actual wordcount here or put a sticker!)

29

1467 words

PREP:

- » Workspace! Set up your space & figure out the best time to write every day.

PROMPT:

- » Your pockets are now infinite in size. Besides your phone, what would you put in them? What would you carry that you can't now?

POPPYCOCK:

- » Begin a scene from a book you love, and then have assassins attack mid-way.

(fill in your actual wordcount here or put a sticker!)

30

1567 words

PREP:

- » Rewards! Figure out small rewards as a carrot to keep you writing every day.

PROMPT:

- » Time machine in hand, you go back to your last day of school. What do you do differently? What changes as a result?

POPPYCOCK:

- » Surprise furries! Pick a scene from a movie or book you love and recast all the characters as animals.

(fill in your actual wordcount here or put a sticker!)

31

FREE DAY

It's the day before NaNoWriMo and you're all ready to go!

Join us on Discord to chat, congratulate, and commiserate!